HOME OCCUPATIONS

Generally, businesses are not allowed to operate at a residential address. However, more and more people are seeking to start or relocate their businesses into their homes. The City of Orlando allows some “office only” occupations to operate from a home when certain criteria are met.

Regulating home businesses is the City’s way of making sure the residential character of the neighborhood where the home occupation is operating is not adversely affected. If you are thinking about operating your business from your home, complete the following questionnaire to see if your business meets the qualifications for a home occupation.
